The research mission of the University of Utah S.J. Quinney College of Law is to advance the frontiers of legal thought and to improve the human and global condition through better policy decision-making and legislation.

AREAS OF DISTINCTION IN RESEARCH

Wallace Stegner Center for Land, Resources, and the Environment was recently ranked #8 in environmental programs in the country.

The Center for Law and Biomedical Sciences for the first time ranked 36th best Health Law program in the US in 2019. It became a permanent center in 2015.

The breadth of COL faculty expertise and interest is reflected in varied types of Federal funding received:

- National Consumer Financial Protection Bureau
- National Institutes of Health
- National Science Foundation
- US Agency for International Development
- US Dept. of Energy
- US Dept. of Justice
- US Dept. of State
- US Dept. of Transportation
- US Dept. of the Treasury/Internal Revenue Service
- US Fish & Wildlife Service
- US Forest Service
- US Social Security Administration

* With 3 months left in FY19, it is unlikely that we will receive significant additional funds.

Proposal Success Rate

* 78% of FY19 proposals are pending funding decisions.