The College of Humanities has 7 departments (Communication, English, History, Linguistics, Philosophy, World Languages & Cultures, and Writing & Rhetoric) conducting research on enduring topics at the heart of civilization. It boasts one of the oldest communication departments in the world (founded in 1892) and the first graduate program in environmental humanities. Faculty are highly productive; a sizable share of the books published by the University of Utah originate from the College of Humanities. The college has established an international reputation in creative writing, health communication, public understanding of science, innovative language education, environmental humanities, and cutting edge research in bioethics and the philosophy of science.

DEPARTMENTAL HIGHLIGHTS:

TOP FIVE
- Communication
- Creative Writing

TOP TEN
- Philosophy
- World Languages & Cultures

PRESTIGIOUS GRANTS & FELLOWSHIPS

- NEH Grants & Fellowships since 1969
- Guggenheim Fellows since 1940
- ACLS Fellows since 1960
- Fulbright Fellows since 2000
- NSF Grants since 1982

A WORLD LEADER IN LANGUAGE RESEARCH

1. Institute of Ed Science funded Dual Language Immersion Studies
   - $400,000 | 40,000 Students | 196 Utah Schools

2. Language Flagship funded Flagship Proficiency Programs
   - $1.2 Million | 5 Languages | Free Language Testing

3. Department of Defense funded Language Training Centers
   - $1.35 Million | 10 Languages | 15 Annual Courses

4. Department of Education funded Title IV National Resource Centers
   - $1.35 Million | 10 Languages | 15 Annual Courses

MISSION STATEMENT:

The College of Humanities advances civilization by cultivating deeper understanding of human communication, thought, and culture.